Mr. Van Sweringen assured the commission that every fact about the merger, which includes the Nickel Plate, Erie, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley. was open for its examination and promised to "use every agency at my command to arecure and produce" the answer to any question it might raise.

Distribution of Stock. Distribution of Stock.

He then struck into the most controversial point which the merger plan has created, the distribution of stock in the new Nickel Plate company, which is to be made among the five corporations. It was his purpose to explain that, he said, because he regarded it "as of the highest importance that in the first large unification plan considered by the commission since the passage of the transportation act there should be no undisclosed relationship or reservation upon which even a suspicion could rest that the transaction was not conceived and carried out in the public He then struck into the most cor eived and carried out in the public Hadley, chairman, in delivering his address to trustees of the Holmes institute at the semi-annual meeting Thursday afternoon in the chapel. Rev. R. H. Ward said the work of the institution for the last 10 years has made it possible for many boys who otherwise would have been a charge upon the public to obtain the training which has male them useful citizens.

Rev. B. R. Holmes, president, reported that the enrollment was the largest in the history of the institute An itemized statement was made of receipts and disbursements.

The audifing committee's report of the books of the institute showed that all funds had been received and accounted for and commended the president for the success of the institute. A resolution was adouted by the trustees commending the work of the institution to the public and declaring it worthy of support.

A cammaign to raise $10,000 for the new building fund was launched. Fev. G. G. Grav, J. H. McFarlin, R. V. Thornton, L. A. Townsley and C. D. Thornton made liberal donations to the institute.

FIREMEN BARELY ESCAPE DEATH AS TRUCK CRASHES

Thrills enough to last a lifetime were given Thursday to members of fire company No. 4 when their speeding truck left the street, shot across the sidewalk, rammed a telephone pole and finally wound up by crashing through a fence at Edgewood avenue and Jackson street, when the ariver sought to avert a collision with a motor truck. Two men were slightly injured.

Aboard the tire wagon at the time of the accident were: J. G. Miller, driver; C. C. Carter, J. L. Martin and A. R. Trotzier. Number four company was the home of some of the recent victims of the Decatur street fire.

H. T. Barnett, of 510 Confederate avenue, was the driver of the motor truck which is said to have caused the accident. He stopped and gave his name to the fireman after the truck ran into the foul line. The damaged fire engine will be back in service after repairs, it was said.

turned over to the firemen's fund by Assistant Chief of Police C. F. Connally, representing the police relief fund. It is the custom of the law firm of Spalding, McDougald & Sible to present $100 each year to the police relief fund. This check was received Thursday and turned over to the firemen's fund. Five-dollar subscriptions were made by A. D. Fest and J. C. Vallebuona.

The special committee handling distribution of the fund will meet next week to apportion it. The total will run well above $20,000 and will provide more than $3,000 each for families of the six firemen killed in the recent warehouse fire on Decatur street.

Cordete, Ga., May 28.—(Special.)—
The county commissioners of Crass county are making arrangements for the beginning of paving on the National highway south of Cordete. Their work will be continued till the Turner county line is reached. This will put the National through Crisp county in permanent form: The program includes a concrete surface for all the highway through the county from the Dooly line to Turner, but the work will require 12 months or more.

Nashville, Tenn., May 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Principles and purposes of that "thing which we all education" were outlined by the Right Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, bishop of Tennessee, Episcopal church, in his prepared address as commencement speaker at the graduation exercises of Ward-Belmont college here today.

Ward-Belmont college here today.

"Education is not gaining something, but being something," the bishop said. "A man or woman may be crammed with knowledge of facts and yet not educated; for education is the development of power from within, Culture means more than

"The real end of education is to develop personality—that capacity to think, to reason, to realize one's self, ene's limitations, and one's powers—which gives force or character."

Bishop Gailor quoted:

"Resolve to be thyself And know that he, Who finds himself. Loses his misery." "The ancient world knew little or "The ancient world knew little or nothing of free, personal responsibility, but today we speak of its as a commonplace truth," he continued.

"And yet the struggle of self concious life and power is still real. Nature—'necessity the mother of us all'—is against it and the monotonous services."

quence of the world. Are not we mere units of sensation in the great whole?

"The refirement and complexity of modern life have created an environment that is impersonal, to which we are obliged to yield our freedom. The away of the tyrant, custom, reaches down into our inmost life, and the fashion of the time dictates the clothes we shall wear, the avocations we shall follow, the very thoughts we are to think and the ideals we are to cherish."

"So our advanced civilization has bound us in a new slavery," the bishop said. "Bigness is the watchword, and mass production the demand. The inn.ass production the demand. The individual is lost to the crowd. The average working man is a mere machine. As the socialists tell us, he spends his life in making the twentyfourth part of a shoe, or the tenth part of a pin. His pride in his work and his fertility or resource get no encouragement nor recognition.
"It is the old, old problem—old as Shelley may rave against the external order and the communist may advocate the destruction of existing institutions, but common sense, that characteristic virtue of our Angle-Saxon race, will refuse to plunge into chaos in order to find peace."...

"There is only one solution." Biship Cailor and "I't is not in a theory.

Before Painleve faced the chamber, his victory seemed assured, for Deputy Maginot of the nationalists had announced that the opposition would support a vote of confidence in the government's Moroccan policy.

Painleve revealed, however, that the African campaign had been costly to France. Four hundred soldiers had been killed in Morocco, he said, and 1,100 wounded. Two-fifths of those killed were French soldiers, and the rest native troops under French command.

The government, Painleve said, felt as much horror over the Moroccan war as the socialists, but he contended that the warfare was necessary to de-fend friendly tribes against the Rif-fians. He denied that there was any intention of starving the Riffians, and maintained that France was seeking to prevent them pillaging the surrounding country. Painleve warned that between the Ouergha river and Fez, France could throw in "all her forces, if necessary." forces, if necessary."

Paris, May 28.—Although he began speaking with the assurance of an overwhelming vote of confidence in his Moroccan policy, Premier Painleve's strength was less impressive when he concluded his defense of the Riffian war Thursday night and the chamber of deputies adjourned until Friday.

The chamber adjourned at about midnight after a dramatic decision by the socialists to abstain from the confidence vote. This action again cast doubt on Painleve's strength. Previously, the premier had defended France's campaign in Morocca and despite the cat-calls of the communists and the shouts of "down with war!" had succeeded in presenting his case—an argument that the fighting against the Riffian tribesmen was inevitable and that France would not fight "a minute longer than necessary."

The witness then told how he ganized the Vaness company to take up stock holdings and consolidated it with the older Nickel Plate Securities corporation, remarking that "we continue to own considerably more than a majority of the Vaness company common stock." The Nickel Plate company after the first consolidation, he said, was a corporation with $13.000,000 less in outstanding capital stock issues at par than the predecessor corporation.

Consolidation Proposal.

The larger consolidation proposal, now pending, he said, was drawn up on the theory that the Nickel Plate would have to take in "some of the weak railroads as well as the strong, and would have to consider what other railroads were doing."

He declared the plan was "in keep ing with the four-system plan of eastern consolidation, but added that "there are other railroads we will desire to acquire to fully round out the Nickel Plate system, as we see

But the selection is not all. it's only the beginning. You can't move out of the indoors without going for your hat. And shrewd people long your hat. And shrewd people long ago established a business whereby millions of dollars are collected every day at hat check places just for keeping your hat for a little while. "Kriegsshulde"

War Guilt.

As was to be expected under the new Hindenburg regime, the Germans have revived the wrangle over establishing who was the actual instigator of the war. The ultra-nationalists persist that they do not see any hope for the restoration of the fatherland unless "the lie" of German "Kriegas-culde" (war guilt) is definitely eliminated from the Versailles peace treaty. A committee has compiled a towering mass of documents proving Germany's innocence or at least an equal guilt on the side of the entente powers. One of the documents is of American origin. It is Herman Bernstein's interview published in his book, "Celebrities of Our Time," concerning Afexander Isvolsky, Russian ambassador to France. Bernstein started his article on Isvolsky with the words: "There is a man in Paris who may justly say to himself: 'This war is mine.' And later: 'I have made this war.'" Bernstein's story is one of intrigue and the course of history. Everything is centered on the new concerned with the olier generation, Everything is centered on the new control of the square.

It is surprising that a man like Don Levine, who is rated as an expert on Russian affairs should fall into the error of describing Trotsky's new post, commissar of education, as a "milk and watery" position. Trot-sky is the man responsible for the new educational policy in Russia. Anatole Lunatcharsky, the former minister. was nothing but a figure-head. Only the brain of Leon could have evolved that tremendous undertaking of changing educations or radically and fundamentally, that nothing like it has ever been attempted in the course of history. Of course, the new Russian system will not carry away the approbation of our American pedagos. But as it involves the population of four huge republies, it is a matter to be taken into consideration. Russia is not concerned with the olier generation, Everything is centered on the new crop of Muscovites. And it was a minute of the matter to a man in paris who may justly say to himself: This war is mine.' And later: 'I War Guilt. himself: "This war is mine." And later: 'I have made this war." Bern-stein's story is one of intrigue and scheming between Poincare and Isvolof intrigue and incare and Isvolsky, showing that France was under complete domination of Russia when the war broke out and that czarist influence in Paris was largely respon-sible for the great conflict of nations. In the last 60 years, in 15 presidential elections, those states have had quadrennial chances to show their devotion to democratic principles. Connecticut went den ocratic five times and republican 10 times.

Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island went democratic in 1912 only, and that time solely because Roosevelt split the republican majorities. New Hampshire went democratic in 1912 for the same reason, and again in 1916 by a scant 56 majority;

Vermont has never gone demo-ratic and, under her voting law, New York has gone democratic five times and republican 10 times. New Jersey voted seven times demo-cratic and eight times republican. Delaware trailed New Jersey in Pennsylvania has been republican ever since her son, Buchanan, a demo-erat, carried the state in 1856.

Maryland has gone democratic eight times and republican seven times— giving Coolidge last year a majority

In other words, out of 165 elections for president in those 11 states the democrats won 37. Such figures are seemingly very fascinating to those democrats who want to "try it again."

Something Else, Also. Those 11 eastern states elect 22 United States senators. Every one of them has a republican senator. Six of them have no democratic senator; five of them have one such. The loster stands 17 republicans to 5 democrats. That, also, is deemed conclusive argument why the south

ERRONEOUS IDEAS ABOUT INSANITY.

The usual conception of insanity a manifestation in language or con-tent of disease or defect of the brain. In fact, to do so is a wirtue uct of disease or defect of the brain. But the law draws a sharp line between sanity and insanity, thus:

People generally have only vague wrong notions are in themselves harmful. In another talk, to avoid confusion, we'll consider the true ause of insanity. Here I am going o mention only some erroneous ideas ole have about the causation of

An individual who is already insane may have certain fixed delusions about his work, business cares, debts and other things which would not worry him in things which would not worry him in us right mind.
(4). Insomnia is no more a cause of insanity than neglect of exercise is. Here, again, a not uncommon symp-tom in certain types of insanity is popularly taken to be a cause. COUNT TO HEAD OLYMPIC CONGRESS Prague, Czeche-Slovakia, May 28.—Count Henri Baillett-Latour, of Belgium, was today elected president of the international Olympic congress, in session here succeeding Baron Pierre

Bob Reeves, captain-elect of Georgia Tech's 1926 baseball team and star halfback on the Golden Tornado, will not make a bid for a position on the football team next fall. Bob received an injury to his leg in the Penn State game last year and since then has been handicapped in both football for the season and it might keep him out of the baseball lineup next spring. This scrappy halfback will be greatly missed when the call is issued next September for the foot-ball candidates.

Reeves was one of the outstanding shortstops in the south this past sea-son, showing one of the best throwing arms in college circles. His batarms in college circles. His bat-ting average for the season was 340. In the Georgia series Bob pounded out nine safe blows out of 12 trips. Among these was a circuit clout that eral operations were performed on his crippled leg, but so far they have failed to strengthen. He was not able to break into the baseball line-up until the Alabama series, due to the fact that he was trying to give his leg plenty of time to strengthen.

Farrell Equals Record 70 Turned in by Mac Smith;

Long Beach, N. Y., May 28.—(by the Associated Press.)—Playing ost perfect golf against a roistering wind during the late afternoon, nny Farrell, youthful professional of the Quaker Ridge club, today led sixty-eight second section qualifiers for the national open golf championship at Lido. His round of 70 tied the new record for the exacting eighteen hole Seaboard courses established yesterday by McDonald Farrell's score was one stroke better than the card turned in by the American amateur champion. Bobby Jones, who finished erratically after posting five birdies on the first 11 holes. The long and well-directed drives off the tee which brought the Georgia star along at a brilliant pace during the outgoing Journey, began to hook into water and sand on the way home, and where he frequently had taken his approach putts for birdies on the first nine, he was desperately trying to sink the long ones to keep within par figures near the close of the test.

TO BRITISH FINALS

Westward Ho, England, May 28.—Robert Harris, of Dundee, Scotland, captain of the British golf team that played against America in the United States in 1922 and at St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1922, will face K. F. Fradgley in the final match for the British amateur golf championship.

Harris, who came into the semifinals by virtue of his defeat of H. F. B. Tubbs, 6 up and 4 to play, won over Noel Layton, of Walton Heath, by one hole. Layton had downed J. I. Cruickshank, the Argentine champion, who had been the favorite throughout the tournament, at the mineteenth hole.

Fradgley, of Warren, defeated R. H. Hardman two up in the semifinals. Previously he had won over J. A. Board, of Home Park, by the same margin.

Hardman qualified for the semi-finals by defeating R. W. Crummack, of Lancashire, 2 up and one toplay. Cruickshank, who had been re-garded as the likely finalist, began his match with Layton poorly but from the third hole improved greatly from the third hole improved greatly and fully deserved his two-hole lead in the ninth. Coming in, however, he was surprisingly faulty in second shots and with irons, being either too weak or too strong. He invariably recovered on the greens, but a lapse in the thirteenth and again in the nineteenth cost, him the match.

A big crowd followed the contest.

It was still undecided whether Paavo Nurmi was exceedingly fond of himself, as some of the men insisted whom he had beaten on the track, or so retiring by nature that he shrank from shaking hands.

Avondale Sales Break All Records

$400,000 Mark Reached in First Seven Weeks

MASHING all records for sales of residential property in Atlanta, Avondale Estates, after seven weeks on the market, is fast becoming the city of 15,000 it is soon to be—a $5,000,000 development. The plat above graphically shows what an overwhelming response has been made to the astounding values here.

More and more Atlantans are recognizing the many advantages of Avondale, the garden spot of Atlanta—as is evidenced by the sale of more than 170 lots and homes, and the enthusiasm which first greeted this residential and investment opportunity has never waned. The reasons for this epoch-making event in Atlanta's real estate history are manifold.

Avondale's Success Assured

Already enough citizens have purchased homes and homesites to assure continued enhancement of values, as building and beautification go steadily forward.

Here you do not purchase merely a piece of ground upon which to build a house. Your title conveys countless matchless attributes as well—pure, clean air to breathe, glorious shade of majestic trees, a veritable riot of blooms and green in the parks and plazas to rest eyes grown tired of the city's dust and grime—such an outlook as you can not find elsewhere in this section. Every facility for recreation and pleasure is at your door.

And, too, there is every city convenience and comfort, and easy accessibility to Atlanta, for Five Points is just twenty minutes away by motor, thirty by express trolley on the main Stone Mountain line.

Small Cash Payments and Easy Terms

Prices and terms are surprisingly moderate in this marvelous homeland. Incomparable homesites now range in price from $1,800 to $2,500, depending on size and location, and may be had for a small cash payment of only 15% of the purchase price—the balance payable in 60 equal monthly installments of from $25 to $30—less than a dollar a day. While you are paying for your lot, you profit by rising values, mounting daily as improvements speed ahead.

During our special introductory offer, your lot will be terraced and landscaped for you, without cost, by noted scenic engineers. Shade trees and shrubbery are furnished you from the extensive Avondale nurseries. Fruit trees and grape vines will be planted for you—and the growth of the foliage, fruit and flowers will double the value of your lot in from two to three years' time.

Whether your wish is to make an unparalleled investment, or build the home of your dreams—here is your opportunity. Never in Atlanta's history has such a home-building plan been offered. After your lot is completely paid for, you need not worry about the cost of building, for we will both finance and build your home, according to your own design, and not only save you from $1,500 to $4,000, but arrange the payments on a monthly basis that will amount to less than rent.

Don't Miss This Opportunity

Visit Avondale! See the model home, already visited by more than 100,000 people, exquisitely decorated by Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company. See the winding boulevards, the green parkways and plazas, the playgrounds more completely equipped than any in the south. Golf is available on the adjacent Forest Hills course, the new Venetian swimming pool opens June 1st, the Avondale Stables, where fine-gaited saddle horses for you and ponies for the tiny tots will be available, will soon be in operation—there are athletic fields of every description. There will

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

MAKE YOUR COLD CREAM Cold creams are so easy to make nd cost so much less when made at home that I wonder why anyone buys them any more. A cream of some good sort is essential to prevent sunburn and to cure windburn, to soften chap-and to cure windburn, to soften chapped skin, to keep the complexion from being weatherbeaten in any kind of climate, and most of all, to keep it clean and smooth. Because train soot and road dust and street dirt fly about the air all thet ime, there are few-places these days remote enough to have absolutely clean air.

Therefore a cream is necessary; light enough to work into the pores and to cleanse them, and, if the skin is dry or if you are nearing the wrinkle age, to fed the tissues under the skin. A flesh-building cream is also cleansing, but a regular cleansing cream is easier to massage with an icheaper to make. heaper to make.

Here's the formula: One ounce of white wax and one ounce of spermawaite wax and one ounce of sperma-ceti, melted in a saucepan with five ounces of white mineral oil if you want a cleansing cream (or five ounces of olive oil if you want a flesh-builder). Add 15 drops of perfumed oil; I prefer bitter almond for its pungent smell. In another saucepan heet until lukwarm 20 grains of heat until lukewarm 30 grains of powdered borax and one and one-half ounces of rose water.

When the wax is quite melted into when the wax is quite metted into the oil, take at once from the fire, slowly pour in the rose water, stir and beat while the whole cools and when it is just ready to congeal, when it is about as thick as mayonnaise, pour off into jars. That's all there is to it.

EDUCATION BOARD WILL PASS TODAY SUCCUMBS AT HOME ON SCHOOL BOOKS AT ADVANCED AGE

work of adopting text books for junior and senior high schools will be completed at a session of the board is not worth while for her to try it on."

But the messenger insisted that she be called. His orders were that every one in the city should try it on. Angrily, the stepmother sent for Cinderella. She came at once, and when the messenger saw how lovely she was he wondered greatly that she should be a kitchen-wench. Sitting down, she took the slipper from the messenger and put it on. It was an exact fit.

Work of adopting text books for junior and senior high schools will be completed at a session of the board in the cassion of the board of education at 2 o'clock this afternoon in council chamber. The report of the subcommittee named to prepare recommendations of new books will be submitted. At the last session some opposition to the method of making recommendations was voiced by Oscar Mills, member of the board, who asked that further information concerning the kind of books adopted and prices be submitted.

Since new courses of study are to book the slipper from the exact fit.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

THE STRENGTH OF THE WEAK.

When his fether-in-law refused his request for a loan, Mansfield tried several other sources reluctantly. But it was a bad year financially. Money was tight and the only persons to whom Mansfield dared appeal were in almost as bad way as himself.

One had his money tied up in a new investment; another had lost badly in a business venture, and had nothing to spare; a third friend advised as Weston had done: "Cut down your expenses—there's nothing else to it."

Mansfield smiled grimly over this. He wondered what the man would do if he was in the same position as himself—what he would say if he was in the same position as himself—what he would say if he was in the same position as himself—what he would say if he kape why Mansfield had to have the money.

Failing in this second attempt to raise the sum demanded by his blackmailer, Mansfield turned every available asset he had into cash and borrowed money on certain investments.

"And so now, with father in prison, Mr. O'Rourke dead, and $100,000 due the bank, there is only Mr. Taggart, the boys, myself, and that herd out there to save us from utter ruin," Mary concluded tearfully. She had been recounting her story, from the beginning when her father first fled into exile, to Stella, who had gained her entire confidence. "Well, don't worry dear, it will all come out all right," said Stella sympathetically, coming over and sitting beside Mary on the piano bench, caressing her in motherly fashion, and wiping away her tears. "Come, child—won't you play some more music for me—it will rest your tired head."

Mary turned to the piano, and her fingers stroked the keys lightly, bringing forth sad, wistful notes.

"It's a song my father loves," she said. "My mother used to sing it to him here—years ago."

"It's lovely," said Stella with a sentimental air. "It stirs sweet memories in me."

Mary stopped. Then from beneath the window of the room stole the notes of a guitar, gently strummed, and a voice lifted in the words of a Spanish serenade.

"What a romantic night," said Stella, listening and going to the window with Mary. The sun was setting. They saw the serenader—it was Miquel.

Suddenly Bud Hughes came up, made a wry face, and menacing Miquel with his feet, chased him from the window.

"Yes, but see how reality boots romance out of life," said Mary laughing.

"But there was a time when Bud too was romantic," said Stella. "How well I remember—"

She was interrupted by the entrance of Bud himself. He was resplendent in natty new clothes, his boots shining, his hair plastered down, and his beard shaved off completely. He smiled and winked to Stella to call attention to the transformation.

"The steers are all in the corral."

"The steers are all in the corral, Miss Mary—ready for tomorrow's drive," Bud reported.

"You look like old times, Bud," cried Stella.

He looked at her wistfully, and said:

"Wish I felt like old times."

Mary gave Bud his instructions.

Stella lingered near the open window, leaned out, and saw sneaking up—Buck McLeod. She furtively took a prepared note from her waist, and casually dropped it out the window.

Buck, below, catching it, read it, in a hasty glance:

"After nightfall when I drop my handkerchief the way will be clear."

Then, unobserved, he sneaked back the way he had come, and disappeared.

Mary picked up a book and settled down to read as Stella went out the door.

Stella found Bud at the gate, in wistful meditation. Her coming surprised him.
"Oh. Bud, on a night like this I couldn't resist the temptation to come and chat over old times with you,"

Stella told him.

She exercised all her most alluring wiles, and soon had Bud's heart going faster than it had in years, and his ongue gently rolling over soft words

While Bud, oblivious to everything but Stella poured out his heart to her, she let her handkerchief drop to the ground. Screaming, Stella fled, as one of the attackers started to tie Bud up with a coil rope.

"Now then." said Buck McLeod to the men, "We'll lock the ranch hands in the bunkhouse and drive off the herd—we don't want any shootin' if we can help it."

They rushed off toward the cowboys' quarters. One lingered a moment, drew a knife from his pocket and slashed the ropes that bound Bud. It was Idaho Bill, the new member of the gang, but before Bud could catch a climpse of him, he had hastened off in the dark to join his fellows.

The rustlers crept up on the bunkhouse, where the ranchmen were playing cards, and drew the heavy cross har across the door, locking it. Then they sneaked hack swiftly to get their horses. Again, unnoticed by the others, Idaho Bill lingered. He withdrew the cross har, looked back cantiously, saw Bud running toward the bunkhouse, and disappeared in the direction of the ranch house.

Bud flung open the bunkhouse door, crying "Rustlers." Miquel and the other men jumped to their feet, whinned out their guns, rushed out to the stable, and mounted horses.

Buck McLead, and his gang, now remounted, were dashing back. The light shining from the open bunkhouse door showed them they had been foiled in the attornet to put over the job quietly. Then they saw the ranch men come flying around from the stable on their horses.

"Gotta be shootin' after all," muttered Buck with a curse.

He hastily explained his reported death how Komi had saved him, and

"No, no, Mary," he said, "stay here."

She would not be thrown off. He tried to dart out alone.

"I shall, I shall," she insisted, following him. There was no time for argument, and Mary was not to be dissuaded.

They slipped out through the back of the house and toward the corral.

"I wish you wouldn't do this, Mary," he said.

"You can't hold the fort alone."

"You can't hold the fort alone," she answered, "and I can shoot as straight as any man."

As Mary and Terence came up the fenced lane into which the corral opened they were suddenly stricken with horror as a sound of many hoofs pawing the ground broke upon their ears, and they saw the stampeding herd rushing out from the corral toward them.

Then, unobserved, he sneaked back the way he had come, and disappeared.

Stella's acted sentimental mood continued that evening after she and Mary had finished dinner.

"What a wonderful night it is." she exclaimed, coming to Mary. "It reminds me of so much—you know, Mary, it was just such a night as this that Bud—Mr. Hughes—and I quit the circus. The moon was—"

Mary, smiling, lifted a coquetishly reproving finger, and said:

"Stella, Stella—I think you're in love with your memories. And—if you want—you'll find Bud down at the ranch gate on watch—in the moonlight, too. We have to keep a watch on, because we've had so much trouble with rustlers."

Stella, affecting a coy embarrassment, said:

"We're too late," Terence cried in dismay, "They've already opened the stems." They van den." They were trapped between two fences of the lane, and in a moment the steers—but they would never be able to outrun the herd. They would surely be trample to death. They started running nevertheless, as this that Bud—Mr. Hughes—and I quit the circus. The moon was—"

"I hope they're all sure-footed critters," laughed Terence, trying to inject a note of humor into their precarious situation to cheer Mary. Such thoughts come even in the face of death. "If none of them slip we'll be safe."

Out in front the ranch defenders were slowly gaining ground on the rustlers. Under their steady gunfire the rustlers were rapidly falling back. "We'll have them on the run soon." said Bud to Miquel, riding next to him.

From the distance came the sound of the hoofs of the stampeding cattle let loose.

"They've opened the corral," cried Miquel.

Miquel.

At this moment, with the ranch cowboys pressing strongly forward, the ranks of Buck McLeod broke, and they started fleeing on the run. Buck, cursing, tried vainly to call them back and continue the battle, but with several of them wounded, and their courage breaking down, they heeded their leader no longer. Disgusted, he turned and fled after them, the cowboys giving chase.

gusted, he turned and fled after them, the cowboys giving chase.

"Come." said Bud to Miquel, "we're not needed here any more. Let's chase back, close the corral, and save as many of the steers as we can."

They spurred off toward the corral. At the gates they found the two rustlers who were stampeding the milling herd through into the lane. They opened fire. Taken by surprise, the two rustlers fled precipitately without every returning the fire. Laboriously Bud and Miquel slid the corral gate shut against the still oncoming steers, and finally had the balance of the herd locked in.

When the flying hoofs of the cattle ceased passing over them Mary and Terence breathed a sigh of relief. They waited a moment to make sure that no more would come, then rose to their feet.

"Well, dear. looks like your boys got them on the run." said Terence. "They've got away with part of the herd, but I'll trap them."

Mary looked at him pleadingly.

"Oh, don't go back to them," she said. "Stay. They'll discover you if you rejoin them."

"No, Mary, I must—it's for your sake. I'm learning things about this gang, and the real thief behind their operations, that are important—to save your father, and the ranch."

NEW HIGHS SEEN Farmers Now Buying Large New Peak Prices Reached Amounts of New Equipment

A most cheering reflection of improved financial conditions in farming communities is found in the sales of farm machinery. These sales, as recorded by index numbers compiled by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, show an almost startling upward trend. Of course, the spring and early summer months pormally witness in creased farm machinery sales, since the average year see 60 per cent of the total sales for 12 months come in this brief season. Yet, this year's January sales were 15 per cent above those of January, 1924; February sales were 22 per cent above a year ago; and March sales were fully 33.7 per cent heavier than the March sales of last year. This improvement is made to seem even more remarkable when it is known that export sales of farm machinery were 10 per cent less during the first quarter of 1925 than they were during the similar period of 1924.

To farm machinery manufacturers their improved demand for their goods is a sorely-needed boon, since they cessities.

This means excellent busi-ness for farm machinery producers in the agricultural depression has built up a deficit in machinery on farms to the amount of nearly a billion dollars. This means excellent business for farm machinery producers in the future if agricultural buying power continues to advance. A point of much significance in the present buying by farmers of machinery is that much expense to farmers is being eliminated as a result of sales direct from manufacturers to agricultural cooperative associations, thus eliminating a "middleman's" profit. Sales by manufacturers direct to farmers or their cooperative associations have this year averaged perhaps 100 per cent above last year. haps 100 per cent above last year. Another significant fact about the heavy purchasing of farm machinery is that it apparently reveals a ten-dency on the part of farmers to use their improved buying power for ne-

Some time ago the management of Maxwell Motor decided to change the name of the company to Chrysler Motors and holders of Maxwell Motors were asked to exchange their shares for Chrysler stock.

Last week professional traders in the stock market, thinking the advance in the price of outstanding Maxwell Motor B shares had gone too far, sold the stock short. admitted to trading today, revived admitted to trading today, revived interest in American Writing Paper 6s and certificates which rose more than four points to new high prices for the year at iil.

Price changes in the railroad group were mixed, St. Paul bonds moved counter to the shares of the road, their advance being based on the assumption that the larger the assessment on the stocks under the recordanization plan, the lighter would be the burden for the bondholders. Tentative reorganization plams were reported to have raised the assessment figure above original estimates. Improvement in Frisco. The easier tendency of liberty bonds was attributed to preparation being made by banks and other institutions to buy new treasury bonds or certificates when they are placed on the market next month. An offering of between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 of the government's securities is expected.

How Good A Loser Are You? You may not believe in crying over spilt milk. Or complaining about your hard luck. Or any of those things.

> But a really good loser goes one step further. He sees what a little ad in The Constitution's Lost and Found Column can do for him.

And he generally recovers what he's lost!

Sounds hard? The only trick to it is deciding to use a Constitution ad. The rest is as simple as one, two, three.

Honest finders watch this paper's Lost and Found column. The little ads telling what articles have been lost and who have lost them are the connecting links that lead to the recovery of many missing valuables.

Remember this, next time you lose anythingcall MAin 5000 and ask for an ad-taker.

FROG HAIR

In all the Animal, Vegetable and Mineral kingdoms, nothing is more rare than Frog Hair. Dating from earliest childhood, you probably cannot recall ever having seen more than one or two strands of a frog's hair, if, indeed, that many. Four-leaf clovers grow in profusion compared to hairs on a frog.

Almost equally rare are "overnight" fortunes. Of course, you hear now and then of some one investing $82.50 in some new Sewing Machine Stock, or some patented device, say to keep revolving chairs from revolving—and in a year, year and a half or two years—retiring to his or her country estate. Also, you may hear of someone buying a piece of land for a ridiculous price like ten thousand dollars, and waking up one morning to find it oil-soaked, thereby foreing the owner to go to Monte Carlo in order to dispose of his wealth.

Such cases, however, are rare—very rare. In the main they are grossly exaggerated—very often, for no other reason than that the narrator may witness our envious astonishment.

The fact that New York City may at one time have sold for a sling-shot and a slug of rum, that a cow set fire to Chicago and burned it up—by no means indicates that land values at Wisteria Lake will ever become sound, or that you will be burning in wealth if you buy a lot on the lake. They might so become and you might so become. Also Halley's comet MIGHT twist its tail around the earth, and do a put-shot which may be proceeding in other de-partments are intended for considera-tion and final action at that time. No definite information as to the ontemplated aggregate cut in war department appropriations is available. There are indications, however, that it will run to a figure of between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 to be lopped off of the military appropriation in-cluded in the total of $339,797,971 appropriated for all war department activities for 1926 fiscal year. The military portion of the budget for that year is $255,388,074 which rep-resented a reduction of approximate. resented a reduction of approximately $4,000,000 from the similar appropriations for the preceding year.

Three-Party Army. Despite rigid secrecy requirements imposed on army officials in regard to the study they are making, it is known to be a matter of grave concern because of the effect a $25,000,000 000 to $30,000,000 reduction would have upon the whole scheme of na-tional defense as outlined in the act of 1920 and which imposed upon the war department responsibility for de-velopment of the new three-part army as a substitute for the old regular army and national guard system. Some officials oso far as to contend Some officials go so far as to contend that such a cut in appropriations would compel the virtual abandon-ment of the organized reserve element of the new army and sharp curtailment of federal assistance to the na-tional guard.

The discussion has brought to light to Memphis at the request of Major D. H. Connolly, commanding officer of the corps of U. S. army engineers in the Memphis district. His report will be submitted to the board of inquiry and his services placed at the disposal of members of the board. The discussion has brought to light the fact that during preliminary bud-get discussions this year a definite proposal was made to curtail army appropriations by reduction of pay strength to an average for the year 1926 of 111,000 men in the ranks of HE MUST ANSWER BANKRUPT QUERIES the army as compared to 118,000 maintained for the fiscal year 1925.
